

ABSTRACT OF THE ACADEMIC DISCIPLINE

“ETHICS”

DESCRIPTION OF THE DISCIPLINE

Academic discipline "Ethics" is the theoretical foundation for building the future successful interaction of the doctor and the patient and provides an opportunity for students not only to master the system of psychological knowledge, but also ensures the formation of psychological skills, which is one of the important elements in the professional training and professional activity of a specialist; contributes to the resolution and comprehension of the most effective methods of influencing the patient's personality.

THE PURPOSE AND OBJECTIVES OF THE DISCIPLINE

The purpose of the discipline is to conclude an elective course is systematic and practically orientated study of the confrontation of the inner world of the individual with the world around us. It makes it possible to realize the dangers and shortcomings of the professional activity of doctors, to develop their inner world, encourages moral self-improvement of a person and a future specialist. and interpersonal relationships.

INTERDISCIPLINARY CONNECTIONS

The academic discipline "Ethical Problems in Medicine" is based on students' study of philosophy, sociology, bioethics, lays the foundations for students' study of medical psychology, social psychology, cultural studies, sociology, social medicine and health care organization, as well as a number of clinical disciplines that involve integration with them.

CONTENTS OF THE DISCIPLINE

The concept of ethics as an independent science. Specifics of professional ethics and morality. Medical ethics. Medicinal ethics. Deontology. Principles of morality of health workers. Rules of relations between health workers and patients. Ethics of the medical team. Conflicts in the medical environment. Actual problems of modern medical ethics. Bioethics. Global problems and medicine.

SCOPE OF STUDY

3 EDS credits, total 90 hours, including 36 classroom training sessions and 54 hours of independent and individual work.